Why Vietnam?

- Strategically located in the East Sea and is the gateway to Southeast Asia countries.
- Ranks 16th out of 133 countries in military strength by the Global Firepower Organization.
- The world's 10th largest arms importer, and ranked number one in Southeast Asia over the past five years (2012-2016) by Stockholm International Peace Research Institute (SIPRI).
- Vietnam's domestic defense production capabilities are relatively limited and in small-scale and technologically inferior and, as a result, it generates opportunities for overseas suppliers and manufacturers.
- Vietnamese homeland security expenditure has been increased due to the country's efforts to police its maritime boundaries, coupled with the need to counter human trafficking and the illicit drug trade.
- Russia, Belarus, Ukraine, and Israel are the main exporters to Vietnam and the country is seeking for the supplying sources from other countries.
